In Business Forty-One Years

Vivian W. Hills, one of Norway's prominent business men has the distinction of being the oldest merchant in town, in length of years, in the same line of business and with the same firm name. Thursday Mr. Hills celebrated his 69th birthday, the occasion being observed with the gathering of a few friends in a reunion arranged by Mrs. Hills. These guests included Mr. and Mrs. William C. Leavitt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sargent, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Packard, who with Mr. and Mrs. Hills, enjoyed an outing last summer at the seashore. It was a jolly party for supper and two tables were filled for cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Hills came to Norway 41 years ago and have been prominent in the business, fraternal and social life of the village. The story of his early years in getting settled in business is interesting and reads like a story book. He is a native of Union, where he received his early education. He learned the jewelry business of "Pierce" of Augusta, an old line jeweler of those days. He married Miss Inez B. Turner, a native of the nearby town of Waldoboro. Responding to the call "Go West, young man" like many in those days, they started out to make their way in the world and located at Stuart, Iowa, about a day's journey from Chicago.

Here, in 1880, Mr. Hills established himself in the jewelry business, and at the same time Mrs. Hills opened a millinery store. Business was good, and for a time they were contented, but the call of Maine was persistent and they decided to return. Through a friend, a traveling man, they heard of the two towns of Paris and Norway. So they left Iowa and their trip ended in a raging snow storm at South Paris.

In due time, he secured half the store occupied by the late Jackson Clark, dealer in boots and shoes. In 1886 the year of Norway's Centennial celebration, Mr. Hills opened his jewelry business. In the meantime he had studied optometrics at the best institutions and later he took several post graduate courses.

After a few years Mr. Clark sold his business which necessitated a change in Mr. Hills' location. He secured the Wm. Whitcomb store which was remodeled and made into two small stores, one of which Mr. Hills occupied and in the other, Mrs. Hills opened a millinery business. Two years later occurred the big fire of 1894, and they were burned out and lost much of their stock of goods. This same year, the Opera House block was built and Mr. and Mrs. Hills secured one of the stores which was arranged to suit the two businesses, and it is here that Mr. Hills is still doing business. After a few years, Mrs. Hills sold out and has since devoted her time to her home.

Seventeen years ago, another fire occurred in the block and his stock and furnishings were partially ruined and he was obliged to conduct another fire and water sale. With customary courage he resumed business after repairs were made. In 1919, Mr. Hills sold the jewelry department to Bert Hutchins, who had been with him 12 years learning the business, and Mr. Hills still continues his business as optician and optometrist.

Mr. Hills was a member of the New England Association of Optometrists serving as vice president until the several States organized independently and he joined the Maine State organization as charter member. He has served several times as vice president, declining the presidency. During the 36 years he has never missed a meeting and has held several offices other than vice president. Mr. Hills is a member of the Masonic orders, a Knight Templar and a Shriner, and is charter member of Oxford Chapter, O. E. S. No. 168.

GIVEN SHOWER

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Stephen O. Jellerson and Mrs. Scott Kilborn entertained at a bridge party and shower at the Jellerson home. The rooms were decorated with snapdragons and jonquils and the centerpiece in the dining rooms was Ophelia roses. Nine tables were filled and after the game, scores were counted. Miss Pauline Noble held high score. At this time the fire screen was removed from in front of the fireplace and the niche was found to be lined with yellow crepe paper and filled with packages all wrapped in yellow. This was in honor of her approaching marriage to Edward McCormack. She was completely taken by surprise. Her packages contained many beautiful articles in silver, cut glass, pictures, linen, etc. During the evening Mr. McCormack, who was let into the secret, brought a beautiful basket of summer chrysanthemums to be presented the honor guest. Dainty buffet refreshments were served during the evening and after the shower, Miss Noble was presented with a large bride cake, decorated in jonquils, which she cut and distributed. Every piece contained some symbol, which was the cause of much merriment.

NO EVIDENCE OF CRIME

As a result of his investigation, Sheriff W. O. Frothingham has decided that garments and other articles found in the Oxford woods show no evidence of crime. There is nothing suspicious about the "find" according to the sheriff.

Late last week, Ernest Descoteau, while fishing, found articles of clothing and a safety razor in the woods, not far from the state highway. The articles were turned over to Sheriff Frothingham, who conducted a search in that vicinity.

Stains, resembling blood spots, on one of the garments, lent color to various stories afloat about the streets.

Committees from the several patriotic organizations will be appointed to confer together. Carrie Tucker was appointed secretary for the remainder of the year, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. Edith Edwards, whose passing is keenly felt in the Corps, and leaves a place hard to fill.

Member of the Daughters of Veterans are reminded of the meeting Friday evening at 8 o'clock, for work with officers in white, and annual roll call, as this is the date of the ninth birthday of the Tent, which was instituted May 20, 1918. Members will respond with a quotation or story. Buffet lunch will be served and those not solicited will carry a plate of something good.

"SPRINGTIME"

Rehearsals are being held daily for the presentation of the musical comedy, "Springtime" to be given at the Opera House, Friday evening, May 27, under the auspices of the Norway High School. The production is under the direction of Miss Miriam Mower of the John B. Rogers Producing Company. The cast is nearly complete and according to the present outlook "Springtime" will be one of the biggest events of the year. It is a sparkling musical comedy which has for its theme the story of a blighted romance of a scion of the 1868 aristocracy and the daughter of the founder of the famous "Brewster's Pills". Their children are also frustrated in their desire to marry, and it is not until the third generation that this love reaches a happy culmination in the union of their grandchildren in 1926. The entire time involved covers a period of over fifty years. Springtime is one of the best of the musical comedies staged by the Rogers Company and will be sure to delight the Norway theatre goers. In other words, "You'll love Springtime."

MY DEBT TO MY HOME TOWN

The town of Norway owes me nothing. If accounts were balanced, I would be the debtor. Haven't I, all these years, lived within the limits of Norway and shared all its benefits. Haven't I had the benefit of its schools and churches? Haven't I had the use of its library and public places? Haven't had the protection of its fire, police and health departments? Haven't its people during all this time, been gathering for me, from the four corners of the earth, food for my plate clothing for my body and material for my home? Hasn't this town furnished the patronage by which I have succeeded in my profession (or business)? Hasn't it furnished the best friends of my life, whose ideals have been my inspiration, whose kind words have been my cheer and whose helpfulness has carred me over my greatest difficulties? What shall I give in return? Not simply the taxes which cover so small a part of what I have received. I want to give more, I want of my own free will, to give enough so I can rightfully say, "This is my home town." So that I can take pride in "my home town"; so that I can take pride in its prosperity, in the honors which come to its citizens, and all that makes it greater and better. I can do this only by becoming a part of the town, by giving to it generously of myself. In this way only, can I, even in small part, pay the great debt I owe to my home town.

The Flanders Field Poppy

American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Day, May 28

"Popies in the wheat fields,
On the pleasant hills of France,
Reddening in the summer breeze
That bids them nod and dance."

So sang a soldier poet of the A. E. F. that blazing summer of 1918, when an unleashed American army was writing Victory into our history. He sang of the poppies because it was through machine-gun raked fields of them that the doughboys plucked them and wore them on their helmets as they forged ahead; and we wear them to remember—

"Poppies in the wheat fields,
How still beside them lie
Scattered forms that stir not
When the star shells burst on high;
Gently bending o'er them
Beneath the moon's soft glance
Poppies in the wheat fields
On the ransomed fields of France."

The Flanders poppy which provided cheer to the marching soldiers and gently watched over the fallen heroes, grew amidst complete devastation on the battle fields of France—between abandoned trenches and even in No Man's Land—thus typifying the courage of the men who fell. It is in reality the corn poppy—not the poppy from which opium is made—and is an ancient wild flower which grows annually and prolifically.

Because immediately after the war where the battle had been the fiercest and the bloodshed the greatest the poppies grew most profusely, the French women tell you today that the poppy is significant of the sacrificial blood of the men who fell.

From this beautiful superstition comes the true message of the poppy as immortalized in Colonel John McCrae's poem written on the eve of his tragic death—

"In Flanders' Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.
"We are the dead.
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' Fields.
"Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from failing hands we throw
The Torch—be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields.

It is because of this close association to the supreme sacrifice made by the men who fell in France, that the poppy has become the memorial flower of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, and is sold anually by these organizations to raise money to aid those for whom the war is not yet over.

On Memorial Day poppies or poppy wreaths will be reverently placed by these two great organizations upon the graves of the comrades who gave their lives that we might live.

At the close of Memorial Day as our flag is being lowered throughout the land, the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary will leave with their poppies on the graves of the fallen heroes this message, "Rest in Peace, We Are Carrying On."

SOUTH PARIS NEWS

May Change Street Lines

A town meeting will be called on Saturday May 21 to act on changing the lines in sections of Main and Pine Streets.

The suggested changes in street lines in the burned district have been staked out by the selectmen. Starting from the road monument at the corner of the Richards lot on Main St., the line runs with a curve to the proposed corner of Pine Street near the Clifford filling station. On Main Street this will set the street line back about twelvet feet at the deepest point, on the Merrill lot. On Pine St. the line will run from the fire station to Main St., just above the upper side of the Clifford filling station, taking off seventeen or eighteen feet from the Main St. frontage of the Frothingham lot. This will carry the sidewalk line directly through two of the elm trees which once graced the street before the fire.

Mrs. L. W. Titus and son were shaken up but not seriously hurt Sunday afternoon when their automobile backed down across the Titus lawn and over an embankment on to the Main St. One other son who was in the car leaped to safety before the embankment was reached. MAY TIME

May is such a funny month,
It's full of big surprises,
There's Mayflowers and there's violets too,
There's lessons and there's prizes.
Sometimes, we have fierce thunder showers
That come up quick and fast,
And frighten me, half out my wits,
I'm glad when they are past.
But there are lots of things I like
When May time comes around,
I like to hang May baskets,
Providing I'm not found.
I like to do the Maypole dance
And hop and skip about,
For May time and the play-time
I'd hate to do without.
There's Mothers' Day and Decoration Day
In this dear month of ours,
And leaves and blossoms in the trees
And songs, and grass, and flowers.
The air is full of winged things,
The robins trill and sing,
The frogs are croaking in the pool,
'Tis May, the month of spring.
So to these many Grangers
We give a hearty cheer,
And here's sincerely hoping
We'll meet again next year.

—By: MRS. DANA E. McALLISTER.
(Recited by Mrs. McAllister's 12 year old daughter, at a Grange meeting).

MOTOR SPEEDING

The speed of a motor
May seem quite the thing,
But the slightest mistake
And the angels all sing.
So, go on, you demon,
And act like a fool,
You're digging your grave
With a car for a tool.
Death is behind you,
He'll stick to your rear,
But you're a good driver,
So why should you fear?
You'll take your last ride
At miles sixty or more—
They'll pick up your pieces,
Like others before.
Nothing will stop you
But death in your path,
So sit a bit closer—
And step on the gas!

GATHERING POETIC VELOCITY

Don C. Seitz, in The Outlook for January 26, 1927, started it this way:

I should like to live at ease
Somewhere in the Caribbees
Where the waving palm trees grow
And the cheery trade winds blow.
Where the sunshine rules the sky
And no gray clouds whistle by;
Dream of youth and things that please,
Somewhere in the Caribbees!

Don Stephen, of Tucson, Arizona, continued in this way:

If you wish to live at ease
Go not to the Caribbees.
Come to Arizona high,
Close up to the clear blue sky.
Where the sun shines every day,
Never goes a week away.
Dream or work or golf or ride;
Here at Tucson ever 'bide.

Now comes the following from Flora Goss Willis, a native Vermonter, who dates her letter at Bon Air, Virginia:

Wherefore seek a life of ease
In the West or Caribbees
When Vermont calls from her hills,
With delight the bosom fills?
Greater joy in work is found
Wringing treasure from the ground
Than in dreaming 'neath the trees
Even in the Caribbees.

And the following from H. J. Y., who does not write from Helena but from New York City:

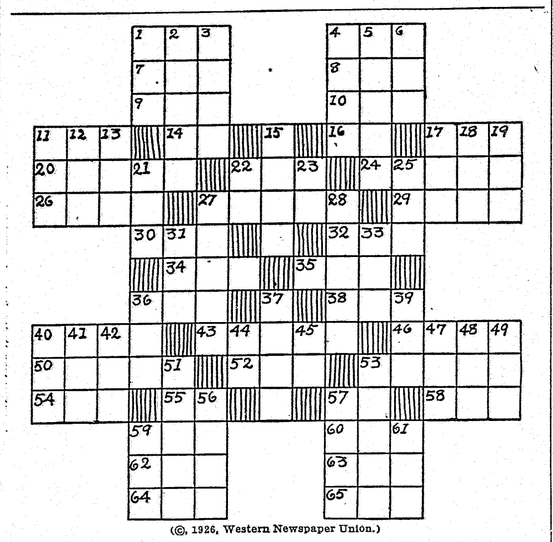

You may go to live in Tucson
If the ties of life you'd loosen,
But the sun shines always there
With a blinding, smarting glare,
While the wind with awful gust
Fills the mouth and eyes with dust.
Would you live in the best manner,
Live in Helena, Montaner!

Maybe some of our readers could add a verse. We can't. Don't know how.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE 123

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Come to Maine for Your Summer Vacation This Coming Summer

A perusal of a few of the 2500 replies to questionnaires sent out by Harrie B. Coe, Manager of the State of Maine Publicity Bureau here, to those who wrote the Bureau for information on where to go last summer, are enlightening and encouraging and show that "Service" to the summer visitor by those who come in contact with them pays. With but one exception, all are praiseworthy. The courtesy of the State Highway Police is especially referred to in a majority of cases as is also that of the city police of Portland. The cordiality of Maine people as a whole is also repeatedly referred to, as one lady from Baltimore writes in part, "I must tell you that the Maine people are the most cordial of all New England ers. Maine wants you to come again is proven." In all cases the efficiency and courtesy extended by the Bureau are referred to. These replies carry a message to the business interests and the citizens of the State for the coming season and conclusively show that "Service" to our summer guests is an important factor.

Along these lines, Booth Tarkington, the well known writer, says, "To my mind Maine is the most beautiful State we have in this country, but what I have found more appealing than its beauty is the fact of its homeliness. These two qualities are seldom combined. I think that it is easier for a stranger to feel at home in Maine than in almost any other place I ever knew. That is perhaps the reason why so many visitors cease to be visitors and get to thinking of Maine as Home."

In commenting on Maine roads, Ellis A. Gimbel, Vice President and Treasurer of Gimbel Bros., Department Store Merchants of New York and Philadelphia, says, "I want to congratulate Maine for her roads. I motored down by the homeland and I found the Maine road excellent, comparing favorably with the roads of Massachusetts and other states through which I passed. There is little about your roads for which you have to apologize."

Edsel Ford and John D. Rockefeller who have permanent summer homes in Maine have heretofore attested to Maine scenery, climate and hospitality.

A few quotations from replies follow, with names omitted as the questionnaires are confidential: From Malden, Mass.—"Aroostook County is well worth seeing. Nothing to criticise, everyone treated us with utmost courtesy and fine hospitality. We found the people in the farmhouses, who took in boarders, of a fine calibre. We found your service excellent and of great value to us." From Indianapolis, Ind.—"Our entire journey was a delightful one, and is constantly referred to by our entire family, three of them are now in Eastern colleges. Your propaganda is persistent, your advertising good, you sell yourselves and make us all want to come back."

From Eustis, Fla.—"We spent $1,000 and got more out of the $1,000 than $3,000 spent last summer in the northwest. Your Florida advertising influenced us. Already rented cottage for next year." From Montreal, Canada—"I was particularly interested in the sea air, the great variety of scenery in a small compass, the good manners and comfortable accommodations." From Mount Vernon, N. Y.—"I was particularly interested in the courtesy of your State Highway Police and the officer stationed on platform in Longefellow Square, Portland, on Aug. 21."

The above are but a few of the replies but are typical of the whole.

Community Suicide

One of the strangest phenomena witnessed in most towns and small places is the apparent eagerness with which many otherwise good citizens contribute to the tendency to commit community suicide.

These citizens will often show uncommon zeal in boosting any movement to obtain civic improvements, to promote the location of new industries, to secure better educational facilities and so on. Yet many of these same proud boosters will deliberately engage in a practice which nullifies all their otherwise laudable efforts and wonder why their town doesn't go ahead.

We refer to the suicidal habit of buying away from home.

The enormous growth of the mail order habit in recent years is largely responsible for the failure of many communities to make the progress which their natural advantages should make possible. The money that ought to be kept at home for the expansion of local trade and industry is sent away to distant cities, never to return. This lifeblood of prosperity is permitted to ebb away, through the indifference or thoughtlessness of the very persons who should set an example of local pride and loyalty.

A trifling saving here and there, usually more imaginary than real, is sufficient to cause the average citizen to forget his duty to his community and to himself, which if performed, would mean more in the direction of local prosperity than all his other boosting efforts put together.

Why boost in one direction, while committing community suicide in another?

We feel that it is up to the business people to do their buying in the town in which they live as well as to keep everlastingly agitating the slogan for others to buy at home.

A community of this kind is a good one to live in and will always prove a blessing to all alike when we do things in the spirit of co-operation.

DENMARK

Mrs. Mina Hartford

Last week, this community was shocked and saddened by the sudden death of Mrs. Mina Hartford, who passed away at the Maine General Hospital, after a serious operation. Mrs. Hartford was born in Denmark over forty years ago, and has been practically a life-long resident of this town.

Long ago, as little Mina Potter, she was noted for her untiring industry, her pleasant personality, and helpful disposition.

Outside of her Denmark relatives and friends, she was well known in Norway, Paris, South Paris, and Portland, where appreciative employers will long remember her tidy, cheery ways, and absolute fidelity to their wishes and interests. Their loving remembrance was attested by many beautiful floral tributes.

Always ready to identify herself with every civic improvement, she was particularly interested in the Denmark Farm Bureau. A very beautiful offering from this organization told of its regard and affection for a departed member.

Besides her many friends, Mrs. Hartford leaves to mourn their loss, a large circle of near relatives. One son, Byron Hartford, of Sandy Creek; a brother-in-law, Arthur Richardson, of this place, whose very faithful and efficient housekeeper she has been for about twenty years; one sister and two brothers, all living at this time in Denmark, and a host of nephews and nieces, to whom "Aunt Mina" has always seemed a very present help in time of trouble. Today, in her little lowly home, banked and roofed with the beauty and bloom of love's final offerings.—"After life's fitful fever, she sleeps well."

Bethel, the Beautiful

By Frederick Marshall Davis

While journeying up the Grand Trunk Railway, recently, it was my good fortune to stop off at Bethel and proved a pleasant surprise at the home of Will Gary, formerly of Norway, a man I had not seen for thirty years.

The home just mentioned is of the bungalow type and stands on one of the highest points overlooking Bethel and the Androscoggin Valley. "Here is a glass of pure water," he said, while seated beside me at the lunch hour and I looked at the clear, sparkling water that comes straight from the mountains and in one sense, resembles and is a true likeness of the water system that supplies New York City.

"The water comes from that watershed, three and a half miles away," he said, as he pointed through the window pane from the drawing room to a chain of mountains, including Ball, Ellingwood, and Black Mountain.

The watershed comprises about fifteen hundred acres and its principal drainage is what is known as Chapman Brook, a stream that teems with red-spots and is noted for its remarkable purity.

The vast acreage that comprises the watershed was bought and presented to the Water Co., by William Bingham, one of the wealthy people of the town, and every house in the corporation but two have running water. One of the advantages in laying the eight inch main pipe, ball joints were used, making it easy to avoid any obstacle that was reached along the trench, and with this style of pipe, it was possible to go directly over or around any boulder instead of confining each joint to a straight line, making the task easy to seek a water level in the irregular river bed of the Androscoggin.

Outside of the catch basin in the hills, another storage basin is stationed on the opposite side of the town, which holds eight hundred thousand gallons and seven and one half miles of pipe were used to bring it to the village.

Mr. Gary, since leaving Norway has lived in Bethel the past twenty-three years, where he conducted a laundry until he took over the work in the water system in 1919 and has since served as Superintendent, Secretary and treasurer.

Bethel has a fire protection of thirty-two hydrants that have a pressure of 75 to 110 and maintains an even pressure of 80 pounds at the center of the village.

Mr. Gary is well remembered in Norway and his many friends are surprised and glad, too, at his wonderful success in taking his turn at the great pump of progress.

We spoke of days back in 1896 when L. P. Swett, formerly of Norway, was crowned as king of bicycle riders and reigned supreme in Maine while the flag of fame floated over his head for a long time and it will be remembered that such Norway men as C. B Pike, Towle, Ned Cross and Stearns Bros. were also bright shining stars and carried off many trophies in bicycle honors.

I passed a short time at the old home of Dan Smith, where I met Mrs. A. E. K. Grover, a local correspondent, who informed me that in coming to the house, that I had traveled a short distance on the highway that leads to Dixville Notch, Upton, Newry, Umbagog Lake and Sunday River, on account of a legend of early days, the river takes its name by being discovered on Sunday.

Mr. Smith, himself, lives with his family on the hill, outside of being an operator his business is along the lines of telephone. Dan, a he is called, is looked up to as a student, he is a direct descendent of the Kendall's and naturally enough, his line of conversation drifts readily into channels that show great knowledge.

I found the woman mentioned in the lines above, to be a person truly interesting and one that seemed well schooled on each noted spot anywhere from Red Rock to Rabbit Valley, and I listened with interest as she went on to tell that the road also leads to Camp Brockton, the hang-out as some would say, of Gram and Mellie Dunham, of far famed fiddling facilities, who sojourn at this interesting spot a while each year.

"Tell me what ails this instrument?" she said, as I followed her through the door that led to a wheezy organ, where I brought out tones that perhaps could not well be called "sounds of symphony," but I soon learned that most any doctor of music could easily bring it back to its oldtime power in filling its place in the musical world.

For years, Mrs. Grover has played an important role as a writer of verse and has written many articles that were truly interesting.

I believe that Bethel, on account of its fine location, like a magnet, has drawing power. The range of mountains, clearly visible are of great magnitude, the hills, different from you and me, they sustain perpetual youth, each year they seem to be fresh and green and hold a power that thrills the heart with exultation. Their snow-capped peaks only seem like an army of anchored clouds, wrapped in a shroud or white mantle, dotted with sparkling gems where sunsets cast a ray of glittering gold.

Bethel fills a prominent place on the map of Maine and if once visited, will never be forgotten. With its drinking water of highest standard and its close relationship with the White Mountains, no wonder summer vacationists flock to this noted spot, where typhoid is almost unknown.

I believe it is truly fitting and nothing out of place, when I say that, as the train rolled away, I was leaving behind, "Bethel the Beautiful."

Given Shower—Met to Make Hospital Supplies for West China.

Last Friday evening, a miscellaneous shower was given to Mr. and Mrs. T. E. R. Barnes, who lost their household goods and personal belongings in the South Paris fire. They received many useful presents from their friends in this community. The party was given at the church. The hostesses were Miss Kathryn Costello, Mrs. George Glover, Mrs. George Cummings, and the Misses Madeline and Margaret Kingsley. Ice cream and cake were served.

On Tuesday evening, the ladies met with Mrs. H. E. Cantello to make up a bundle of hospital supplies to send Dr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, for their missionary work in West China. They have already sent one bundle. Mrs. Baker was Minola Hutchinson.

Advertisng Doesn't Pay

Isn't it funny?
That so many
Business men
Will get up in the morning,
Shave with an advertised razor,
And advertised soap,
Put on advertised underwear,
Advertised hose, shirt, collar, ties, shoes and suit;
Seat themselves at the table
And eat advertised breakfast food,
Drink advertised coffee or substitutes,
Put on an advertised hat,
Light an advertised cigar,
Go to their place of business in an advertised automobile,
And
Turn down an advertising plan—
On the ground.

The Courtship of Myles Standish

Being a descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullens, the writer has spent much time and some expense to ascertain who they were and what their history, uncolored by unfounded romance.

It has been assumed that the poet, Henry W. Longfellow, being a descendant of "best beloved couple of the Pilgrim band," founded his tale in verse upon facts, but this is not the case in any particular, nor did he ever so claim it. There was a tradition, which he obtained from some quarter, and he made use of it, to write a sentimental poem which, "embellished with the magic of oriental exaggeration," would add to his fame. Tales colored by romance, he wrote in one of his productions, were as eagerly read in his time as in days of old.

None of the incidents stated in the poem fit the conditions and surroundings of John Alden, Priscilla Mullens, or Capt. Myles Standish. One has only to read carefully Gov. William Bradford's History of Plymouth Plantation, recovered from England since the poet's death, to understand this.

Judge James Thatcher, in his history of Plymouth, Mass., published in 1832, states that the tradition relating to Capt. Myles Standish's Courtship had often been repeated in the Old Colony in fireside chat, but with circumstances, which would refer it to a later time. This is good authority as well as sound sense, and should be carefully noted by everyone who is a worthy descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullens.

What is really known about them? John Alden was not a member of the Pilgrim Church at Leydon, Holland. With William Mullens' wife, Alice; son, Joseph, and Priscilla, he was of the "London Contingent," which were at Southampton, England, on board of the Mayflower, waiting for the Speedwell, with Elder Brewster and Gov. John Carver and others from Holland. John Alden, who was 21 years old, had been secured to go to the New World as a cooper. The evidence is that he was an educated young man who went in a spirit of adventure. The law of England at that time was that whoever transported beer—then considered as necessary to drink with victuals as tea and coffee now—beyond sea, should return enough material for making new casks, as would equal those containing the beer so carried away. It is not to be supposed that John Alden alone, rived out the material to be sent back to England. He was to superintend the job. Whether this was ever done, does not appear, from any account that has survived the lapse of time.

Among the Adventurers who financed the Pilgrim enterprise was one Robert Alden of London and it is reasonable to assume that he procured John Alden to go out with the Pilgrim Colony. If John had not known Priscilla before, he must have got acquainted with her at Southampton.

William Mullens, with his family, lived at Surry, opposite London. He was also one of the Adventurers and decided to dispose of his home in England and cast in his fortunes with the Pilgrims overseas. H left behind a married son, William, and a married daughter, Elizabeth. He died aboard the Mayflower in Plymouth Harbor, in the New World, and his body was taken ashore and buried on Cole's Hill. This was about thirty days after the death of Rose, the wife of Capt. Myles Standish. As the Pilgrims were dying at the rate of sometimes two a day, with only five or six well ones among whom was Capt. Standish, to care for the sick, nurse and feed the living, and bury the dead, it would be monstrous to suppose that he thought then of sending John Alden out to William Mullens, then sick unto death, to ask his consent to woo his sick daughter and then the daughter herself to marry him. Priscilla, though sick herself, was the only one of the family who survived that fearful winter. John Alden might not have been one of those who kept his health during all that fearful time. That he never went on any such fool errand as the poem states, is not to be doubted. That any of his and Priscilla's descendants should harbor such an idea is past rational judgment.

Gov. Bradford, in his history, states that John Alden was a hopeful young man and much desired but to go back to England or stay as he chose. "He stayed and married here."

What was there to keep him at Plymouth, and prevent his return in the Mayflower? Nothing under Heaven but his love for Priscilla. They were soon married and "were happy ever after." He was devoted to her to the time of her death. She was his love and his queen, and he was her hero and her shield. This should be more to their descendants than all else. Their devotion to each other should be engraved on stone or marble at the head of their graves. It is a priceless inheritance. The last vision we have of them is when, past 80, he appeared at the funeral of Gov. Josiah Winslow, "with his Priscilla on his arm."

REASONS FOR FAILURES

There is a cause for everything! Nothing ever "just happens". If a man is promoted to a better job, there is a cause. If a man loses his job, there is also a cause.

There are many causes that lead o failure. Here is a list of the most common causes:

Finding fault with the other fellow but never seeing your own faults.

Doing as little as possible and trying to get as much as possible for it.

Spending too much time showing up the other fellow's weak points and too little time correcting your own.

Slandering those we do not like.

Procrastination—putting off till tomorrow something we should have done day before yesterday.

Deceit—talking in a friendly manner to the other fellow's face and stabbing him in the back as soon as he turns around.

False belief that we are smart enough to reap a harvest of pay before sowing a crop of honest service.

Disloyalty to those who have trusted us.

Egotism—the belief that we know it all and no one can teach us anything.

Last, but not least, lack of the necessary training and education to enable us to stand at the head in our line of work.

Look over this list and check yourself by it. If none of these causes for failure apply to you, then you are to be congratulated, because you are a success.

O TASTE and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him.—Psalm 34:8.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, in view of the loss sustained by Harry Rust, Women's Relief Corps, by the decease of our friend and sister, Edith A. Resolved, that as a just tribute to the memory of her, we can truly say that we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our love and respect.

Resolved, that our Charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be forwarded to the family, a copy be spread upon our records and one be published in the Norway Advertiser.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, it hath pleased our Heavenly Father to call from her labors on earth our Sister Rosa B. Kneeland, and

Whereas, That in the death of Sister Kneeland, this town and community have lost one who was ever ready and anxious to aid in every worthy activity and render help and comfort to those who were in need; the church, one whose musical ability was always freely contributed; Bear Mountain Grange, a member who, while her health permitted, enriched many a program by her talents, and her home, a true home-maker, whose devotion to her family and generous hospitality to a wide circle of friends will ever be a precious memory.

Be it Resolved, That we extend to her family our sincere sympathy in their deep sorrow; spread this tribute upon our records and send a copy to the Norway Advertiser for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

Talks Sense and Otherwise

Mark Twain once said it seemed a pity that Noah and his blessed family did not "miss the boat". At another time he remarked that he had often wished that he had been a passenger on the Ark and had been equipped with an auger of ample size. What he had in mind, the reader may infer. Twain was something of a success in handing out chatter of a funny brand, so it is likely that these two samples may be considered as mirth provoking.

Angel food looks inviting and is a popular item of food with a certain class of people. Jiggs likes corned beef and what goes with it. It all depends on the result one wishes to attain.

A man driving along the road leading to Atlanta overtook a negro with his wife and twelve children. He asked, "Sam, where are you going with your family?" "To the circus," he replied. "But, Sam, where did you get the money to take all those children to the circus?" "I sold the parlor stove," answered Sam. "But, Sam, next winter you will need the parlor stove." "Yes, Boss," said Sam, "but the winter is a long way off and the circus is here right now."

Lots of people are like that.

A little girl was asked to write an essay about man. She wrote: "Man is a funny animal. He has eyes to see with hands to feel with, and is split up the middle and walks on the split ends."

And here's one from Bruno Lessing:

"The theatres. Vulgarity and stupidity. Yet people pay as high as $10 for a single seatIt is a game for the idle and careless rich. It is a wonder that decent folks keep it going.

"And for the pleasure of dancing in a crowded space, in fetid airall a waste of time, a waste of money, a waste of health, and a waste of the precious vitality of life."

Many of us are like Bill. He sent a boy out on an errand but was not satisfied with what the boy accomplished, and Bill said: "Next time I want to send a blamed fool for anything I'll go myself." Bill knew.

But the great joke of all is that we, of New Hampshire, tax ourselves to send four hundred eighteen men to our state legislature that they may increase our taxes and restrict our liberties.

MAINE SCENERY AND FISHING

A sixty-four page pamphlet comes to our office, which we supposed was the annual report of the Commissioner of Fisheries and Game and issued by Willis E. Parsons.

Somehow we don't find his name in it. It relates to a subject of which he is the acknowledged head, giving statistics of the several State Hatcheries, also the receipts and expenditures of money up to June 30, 1926. Also shipment of game, together with many enticing photo half tones.

It travels with title of "Maine Fishing and Hunting" and shows Chimney Pond, Mt. Katahdin, on the cover. It also contains these words: "Photo copyright, by permission W. F. Dawson." Just what that means can't definitely say. All the pictures are good, even though perhaps some are located where they don't belong.

The usefulness of the map is questioned yet it is something for those with good eyesight.

The Augusta Press did the printing and they are high in the art of getting out good work. Who sent it to us is unknown, as the envelope is lost.

The Joseph Smith Pine Lot, so called, in Lovell, will be sold Saturday, May 28, at auction on the premises, at 10 o'clock, by A. D. Park, auctioneer.

THE REDEMPTION OF A WEED

Minnesota Farmers Have Turned Sweet Clover from a Wild Grass Into a Very Valuable Forage

From the Minneapolis Journal

Ten years ago sweet clover was a neglected wayside weed all through this region, tolerated as affording pasture for bees, but otherwise classed with sow thistles and other noxious weeds.

Today there are approximately 184,000 acres of sweet clover in Minnesota, and even more than that in North Dakota. And agronomists believe that the surface of this crop's possibilities has barely been scratched.

What has wrought this sudden change in the farm status of the erstwhile weed? Two things principally: First, that it has been found to provide excellent pasture for livestock as well as bees; second, that it has the nitrogen-producing habit of the legume family in an unusual degree.

It has been found that stock has to learn to like sweet clover but after a week or so in the field the animals grow very fond of the flavor. It has been found that they thrive on such pasturage, both for milk production and beef production, sweet clover, moreover, is drouth-resistant, because of the great tap root it sends down through the hard pan.

But the plant's production of nodules on its roots containing nitrogen, that essential fertilizing principle, is perhaps its most valuable characteristic. Nitrifying bacteria take very kindly to sweet clover roots, and carry on the fixation of nitrogen steadily in nature's own laboratory.

It is estimated that each acre of sweet clover will average two tons of dry matter above the surface and one ton below. Thus, on the basis of 46.4 pounds of nitrogen to the ton of sweet clover hay, we have Minnesota's 184,000 acres of sweet clover producing 552,000 tons of fertilizing material, the nitrogen content of which would be 12,800 tons.

Ordinary sodium nitrate, as used in commercial fertilizers, contains about 18 per cent of available nitrogen in the form of ammonia. So it would be necessary for the farmers of Minnesota to apply 71,110 tons of commercial sodium nitrate, worth $90 a ton, or $6,399,900, to equal the fertilizing value of the sweet clover now grown.

Alfalfa is another crop that does much the same work, but while alfalfa is better for hay, it is found that sweet clover is better for pasture. There are about 330,000 acres of alfalfa in Minnesota now, and its fertilizing value, figured on the same basis, is equivalent to sodium nitrate worth $11,781,000.

Thus we have some eighteen million dollars worth of fertilizer being put every year into Minnesota soil by these two useful legumes.

It is interesting to note the effects on crops following sweet clover or alfalfa. R. S. Dunham, agronomist at the Crookston experiment station, reported to the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association at a recent meeting that, on plats where sweet clover had been plowed under he found increased yields as follows: Wheat, four bushels an acre; Flax, eight bushels; corn, seventeen bushels; potatoes, fifty-three bushels. It has also been found that wheat following sweet clover or alfalfa carries a higher protein content and nets the farmer a better price in consequence.

No wonder the farmers in the Red River Valley and elsewhere are turning to sweet clover to restore the fertility of their lands. The weed of a decade ago has found its place in agriculture, its mission in life.

Editorial Note—Has any of our readers had any experience with sweet clover for either pasture or hay? If so, it would be interesting to learn the result, especially as the plant flourishes in soil that might be called impoverished. It may be that the yellow-blooming variety is the one that has proved a boon to Minnesota farmers, while the white blooming is the one known hereabouts, but botanists tell us that there can be little difference in the value of the two varieties as food for live stock. Some of the seedsmen sell the seed, or it would be easy for anybody to gather enough from wild plants next August and September to do some experimenting with the sweet clover on poor land. At any rate the Advertiser will be glad to tell the people what anybody in this vicinity has learned about sweet clover for cattle feed.

PROTECT THE WILD FLOWERS

Spring has dressed the hills in green, and the highways are inviting the motorist out into the open country. Every one feels the impulse to shake off the habit of winter seclusion and to go where the spring flowers and the swelling buds are touching the landscape with new beauty.

By all means, obey that impulse. But in doing so, remember that the countryside which appeals to you has a claim upon your consideration. The beauty that you appreciate is not yours; it belongs to others.

The trailing arbutus and mountain laurel and the other spring flowers and shrubs require protection. Later, blossoming fruit trees and shade trees will need equal consideration.

There are laws, now in force for the protection of many of these beautiful growing things, but thoughtful motorists will not need the threat of a legal penalty to refrain from despoiling the countryside.

In many of the sections of the country arbutus and other early spring wild flowers have been practically eliminated.

Such devastations ought to be checked, and the responsibility rests upon each of us to cooperate in protecting the natural beauty of the country in which we all have an equal interest.

Birds are an important aid to agriculture, horticulture and forestry, according to publications of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. They are active everywhere. Flickers, blackbirds, robins and thrashers, seek their insect prey on or near the ground; woodpeckers, nuthatchers, titmice and chickadees closely search the trunks and leaves of trees; vireos and, warblers and scan the flowers: and flycatchers sweep their prey from the air.

It is doubtful if saving deposits would be half what they are today if people were not saying to fulfill pet desires.

This Newspaper is Your Market Place

THE old-fashioned market place that our grandfathers knew has just about become a matter of history.

But the market idea is more effective today than ever before.

This newspaper is your market place; it is the modern means of displaying goods before the whole community. With your paper spread before you, all the necessities and luxuries of life are ready for your selection.

Newspaper ads have entirely changed our habits of living. How they have simplified and improved the system of buying and selling! Today it is not necessary for the buyer to go to market; rather, the seller—yes, the market itself!—comes to you, in the comfort and privacy of your home.

Form the habit of reading the ads and discussing them. Include the children in these important meetings. Let them "go to market" with you, and learn the business of selection and purchase. It will mean money saved—and more happiness gained in exchange for what you decide to invest.

YES AND NO

By Edgar O. Spaulding

At quarter of six they had a spring in place and said the job was done though when I come to look at it found one of the rear wheels set back of the other by as much as three inches. I refused to accept the job or to pay for it. The proprietor, who had shown up in the meantime, said he would have a spring of proper size in the morning. This meant our staying all night and we were charged the limit for a room, there being no camp around available. In the morning I was on deck promptly and found the darky present but no proprietor or spring. At nine o'clock I sent the darky up to see why the boss did not come down and he reported that the boss wasn't up yet but would be down "after a little." Meaning in plain English when he got good and ready. At quarter of ten the proprietor finally showed up and maybe you think I didn't talk to him. Said, "he couldn't get no spring," I told him that maybe his time wasn't worth anything but mine was and asked for my bill. He "guessed about four dollars" which I very promptly refused to pay. After a time I offered two dollars and promised to send his spring back when I got some place where I could, so we settled on this basis. In the meantime I had made inquiries among the other garages to see what harm it would do to drive with the rear wheels out of line and they all said none, so I started out. Car handled funny, but otherwise seemed to go all right.

I stopped at the biggest garage in Oxford, N. G., the next town of any size. There they had the largest stock of springs I have ever seen but as luck would have it none would fit the Oakland.

So on to Durham, where after much hunting, we located an Oakland Service Station. They had no spare springs, but did have one in another car which could be ordered to replace it. They also had a Reo spring which was new and also a heavier, and as they thought this would be better for my purpose, spent all the afternoon making the necessary changes. Then when the car was let down this was found to be two inches too long!

All of us were pretty much discouraged by this time for there is nothing more disheartening to the motor-camper than a car that can't be used. As long as the car is in good order and there is money in his pocket, your motor-camper is content. He will put up with the discomforts of the weather and road and all without a whimper but take his car and all is blue. He is down and out.

To make a long story short the service station did what should have been done in the first place, ie, used the spring from the other Oakland. To square matters they made a price which was very satisfactory and shortly before six o'clock, we were once more on our way again.

This night we spent at Oak Grove Camp which is three miles outside of Durham. This is the very same camp where we encountered the big rain last year and well we remembered it. There has been but little change in this camp during the past year except in the number of campers. They were few. This has been generally true all the way down, not one camper this year where there were ten last. There is also a surprising number heading north and this caused us to wonder at the time, but since reaching Florida the reason is perfectly plain and can be summed up in two words, "no work."

In Virginia and Georgia, it seems to be considered almost a disgrace for a white person to work and no matter how small the business a negro does the work while the white man does the heavy looking on and handles the money. This, I think, explains to some extent at least, why these states are backward as compared with northern states. In North Carolina, however, things are right the other way, everybody works and there is not a more prosperous state in the Union today than North Carolina. Clean busy towns, good schools and fine roads, mills working day and night and every one contented in making of this state a leader of the south.

A camper stopped beside a cotton field in North Carolina where the whole family was out picking cotton and watched them work for awhile. Finally this man from the north had an idea and says to one of the pickers, "Why don't you import some monkeys and teach them to pick that cotton for you?" "It wouldn't be a might of use," the southerner replied promptly, "you Northerners would come right down and liberate 'em." The past it would seem dies hard.

From Durham south we followed the same route as last year and reached King's Mountain after dark, the longest day's drive we made. The next morning about 4.30, Ethel heard what she thought were the fire whistles blowing and got us all out of bed only to find out that it was the mills regular whistle to get folks up for work. As the shift does not go on duty until seven it would seem as if they should be ready in plenty of time, if they pay any attention at all to the darn things. However this gets us ready for an early start which we improve by taking the wrong road and going fourteen miles out of our way.

Last year the road from Greenville to Anderson, S. C., was bad and I rather dreaded this stretch but on arrival found this thirty-five miles all new macadam. We make good time and reach Athens and Bray's Camps early in the afternoon. The twenty-five cent cottages being still available and this on a Saturday, we rent two of them and settle down to stay over Sunday.

I have had quite a little to say of signs but I cannot refrain from mentioning this one from a roadside lunch. "Our coffee at 5c is delicious. Use one spoonful of sugar and stir like Hell, we don't mind the noise."

Sunday proved to be a regular rainy day, growing much colder at night. Monday morning a frost but the sun shone so we staid over waiting for the mud to dry up. While the roads in Georgia are generally very bad after a hard rain, it is surprising how quick they dry up once the sun comes out. The danger in driving on a muddy road in Georgia, is not so much from the mud itself, though this is slippery, but rather owing to the deep ditches and the turnpiking of the roads which are none too wide. In meeting another car, if one gets crowded and starts to slip, it means the ditch sure and as these ditches are from two to four feet deep, it is a costly process getting out again. The new roads, though gravel, are wide and good, but it will be some time before all the main roads in Georgia are improved.

A new Buick drove in to this camp, (Brays), with a shiny new trunk on behind to have the oil changed. The trunk being screened at both ends, I was curious enough to go up and look into it, to see what they had. There I found three hens scratching away as though right at home. I have seen campers with dogs and cats, parrots and canary birds, alligators and monkeys but this is the first time for hens. He was headed for St. Petersburg, and while I do not know just why he should want hens in St. Petersburg, I intend to find out and shall ask Mrs. Jackson about this the next time I see her.

At Athens we met four girls from Milwaukee travelling alone and camping. They were on a six months' trip, so they said and seemed to be having a great time. All four were dressed exactly alike with gray knickers, navy blue middies with knit skull caps to match which made

At Athens we met four girls from Milwaukee travelling alone and camping. They were on a six months' trip, so they said and seemed to be having a great time. All four were dressed exactly alike with gray knickers, navy blue middies with knit skull caps to match which made a very attractive uniform. We met this outfit several times later and became well acquainted.

Also at Athens we met Mr. and Mrs. Beard from Watertown, New York, and on their first camping trip.

Tuesday morning saw the sky filled with black clouds and with a brisk and very cold wind from the west and north. The natives said it meant rain. Mr. Beard and I looked the weather over carefully and he allowed while I calculated that if we was at home, we should say that it wasn't going to rain. So having reached a verdict, we packed and moved on. For awhile it seemed that as weather prognosticators, we were rating one hundred per cent and that when it came to predicting the weather, aforesaid natives were not in it with us for the sun peeked out from behind a cloud, the road was fine and things looked very rosy. This goes to show that one should not get puffed up too much or pat themselves on the back unduly for in an hour it was raining. The wind and cold as well as the road became worse with every mile. Finally the rain turned to sleet and after awhile to snow, this part of the storm lasting over an hour. And cold! O my! I put on all the clothes I had, including woolen gloves which I happened to have in the car pocket but I was still cold. Many times in my life have I seen it twenty below in Maine but I give you my word that never since I can remember have I been so chilled as during the Georgia snow storm on Oct. 26th, 1926. And Florence sat on the back seat midst the nice warm blankets and sang at the top of her voice about "Jingle Bells" and "What fun it was to ride in a one horse open sleigh." I could have slapped her.

The mud became redder and slipperier and every little while the rear end of the car would take a notion to slide toward the ditch. Then Florence would laugh, Ethel would grab the side of the car all ready to jump, (this shows her confidence in the driver,) while I,—whenever I pound my thumb with the hammer or miss a two foot putt playing golf, I always count up to ten.

All things have an end however, and we reach the good road sixteen miles from Macon, then Macon and Flanagan's camp, which is located just inside the city limits on the south. The rain had ceased but it was still cold and we were colder, so we rented a cottage which had been made over for camping purposes from a small house. There was an unused fireplace in the room and we asked the lady custodian if we could use this for a fire. She said, "Yes, if you can find any wood." This part of it did seem a little difficult at first, till a darky, finding out what I was hunting for, got me a whole armful. Florence, in the meantime had found several big lumps of coal and some bricks which we improvised for a grate. Talk about solid comfort. Oh Boy!

Flanagan's Camp at Macon is a new, very clean camp, far better than the city camp where we stopped last year though not as large. There was a greater number of campers at this place than at any camps we have seen yet, fully as many headed north as south. We find on inquiry that most of those going north at this time are from the hurricane district of the East Coast. At this camp also were also the four girls from Milwaukee, but Mr. Beard failed to show up.

Next morning (Oct. 27th,) the ground was frozen solid as well as the drops of water on the car top and the fog was so thick it was impossible to see two feet. We pack and move along, hoping to get where the weather was warmer.

It did get warmer as the day advanced and the sun came out, though not what could be called hot. We make "The Pines Camp," Valdosta, Ga., without incident.

A monstrous big house car played hide and seek with us all day. Behind the house car they were pulling a Franklin Sedan and I was much interested in watching this as the sedan tracked perfectly and the whole outfit took the curves with ease. They put up at Pines Camps so I went and looked it over. The drawbar was fastened to the axle and tie rod in such a way, that when a curve was encountered the pull on the draw-bar moved the front wheels just the right amount to make the sedan trail correctly.

I felt that with broken springs, cold weather and snow, that I had received about my share of trouble for one trip, but a note on the wall of this camp, made me think that by comparison, I might be having a pretty easy time. The note read, "From Cincinnatti to this place, (Valdosta, Ga.) 39 flat tires, one new rear end." How true it is nothing is ever so bad but what it can be worse.

Valdosta is a nice city of 15,000, the center of a prosperous tobacco, cotton, peanut and melon region. The name is derived from the Italian, "Val de Oasta" and means a beautiful vale. Last spring we were unable to find a camp we liked here but the Pines Camp where we staid this year is very satisfactory. It is clean and dry with all the conveniences one could ask for, such as hot and cold water, shower baths, good store, cottages both furnished and unfurnished, and so on. Somehow we missed this last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Beard came in after dark so we held a reunion and helped them make camp. Still cold but nowhere near as bad.

Just south of Valdosta by a little lake, midst a fine grove is a little subdivision. Last spring there was much shining new paint, signs and bally-hoo. There are five or six brand new Spanish type "a la Florida" houses built here. I noticed when we drove by this fall, that the field office was deserted and that not a single one of these houses was occupied though the signs still promised big profits, if one would but invest.

It being still cold in the morning, decided that one night was enough for Valdosta, so packed up, said good-bye to the Beards and moved on. Have not seen the Beards since but as they were going to Orlando presume they went directly south from Lake City.

The road being all good it did not take us long to reach the cattle-bar which marks the state line between Georgia and Florida. The two states are separated by wire fence, cattle-bar and rivers, this is to prevent cattle from Florida where tick is very prevalent crossing the line, as Georgia is fighting tick, tooth and nail. Florida cattle are allowed free range over most of the state so some means to prevent intermingling had to be devised if tick eradication in Georgia was to be successful. Florida has tried for years to do away with free range by law but has never been able to get legislative action in it. The result is that (except in a few counties) cattle and hogs run wild and as one newspaper puts it, "Florida is the only state in the union where a hog has more rights than a human being."

We cross this cattle-bar and enter the good state of Florida almost a year to a day that we crossed the line the first time. And what a difference in the weather! Last year black clouds and rain and gloom. This year bright sunshine, blue sky and warmth. Last year de tour and mud. This year more new macadam. To be sure there was a detour further on but this was dry and good and we could drive right along.

It is surprising how much better a country looks in sunshine than in rain. Last year we thought that sand and swamp, Spanish moss and flat country was bum stuff to look at but in this glorious sunshine we were inclined to agree with the real estate signs and admit that all might be beautiful.

The novice at camping should not expect that everything will be to his liking. There is bound to be rain and poor roads. There is bound to be rain and cold as well as times when the wind and cold as well as times when the car doesn't work just right but the dyed in wool camper puts up with these things because he must till such time as the weather is right and the car is right, then "Oh Boy! Aint it a Grand and Glorious feeling." And who knows what adventure is waiting for one, just around the curve in the road? Of such is the life of the motor-camper.

By the time we reach Lake City it is almost too warm for comfort. Finding it was just as near to De Land via Jacksonville as the way we had originally intended we thought we would like to visit Jacksonville again and maybe run across some one we knew.

The sixty miles of good road between Lake City and Jacksonville are soon travelled and we once again pitch our tent in Phoenix Park Tourist Camp.

Shortly after us came the four girls from Milwaukee and settled next to us. The weather hot and then some. The date Octobed 28th.

The tourist camp at Phoenix Park was just as crowded and just as dirty as last year, in fact it looked not a bit better in the sunlight than in the rain. This camp boasts a big community building in which there is an entertainment nearly every night and most of these entertainments are free. A religious service is held on Sunday nights. It is such things as this that make for popularity among campers. Accessibility to a good provision store and to town are other things.

We noticed on entering camp, signs telling about a big vaudeville show "tonight at the Community Building," so we went up. The show was free, the talent being all from among the campers and some of it was plenty good enough to get by in a city theatre and in fact some of it was big time stuff, such as the "Flying La Marr's" for instance and a black face comedian whose name I have forgotten. The show, as I said before was free but during the evening a collection was taken up for the purpose of putting on a big time Hallowe'en night. They wished to hire an orchestra and do the thing up right. Florence decides for us right there that we are to stay over for this so she can dress up and be in it.

They also had another method of raising funds which was unique to say the least. After the show proper, a red faced, red haired judge together with a sheriff and with the actors for witnesses, took the stage and proceeded to hold court. The clerk would read the name of someone in the audience who would be arrested immediately by the sheriff, brought before the judge and fined, this money all going into the Hallowe'en fund. One man was fined for speeding in the camp ground, another was soaked ten cents for wearing a red necktie, a lady was fined twenty-five cents because it was proved that she talked too much, it cost another lady ten cents because the judge didn't like her hat and so forth and so on. All in good fun of course and incidentally quite a bit of change was added to the fund in this way. I write of this as a possible suggestion for use at home some time.

The weather staid bright and warm and Hallowe'en was as hot as any night we had seen this year. Much pains and time had been spent in decorating the hall and it looked very pretty. The costumes worn both by young and old, would have been a credit to any masked ball anywhere, though each and every one of them was a poor tin-canner from the north or west.

The first part of the evening was given over to the children as well as the first dance. A regular jazz orchestra was in attendance, so there must have been money enough. Comedy, mixed with much laughter and dancing passed the evening hours away, every one contented and all having a good time.

As I drop to sleep on this hot October night without covering of any sort, with the music of the dance faintly heard in the distance, though it is nearly winter, I am dreaming of summer days, bathing beauties and ice cream soda.

Parent-Teacher Meeting—Leonard A. Carsley Receives Advancement—Three Clubs Entertained at Camp on Long Lake—Funeral of Aaron Libby—Calvary Church Notes.

There was a good attendance at the Parent-Teacher's meeting held on Tuesday evening, May 2nd. Several fine selections were played and the business meeting was conducted by the Sec. Mrs. Gladys Chapman, the president, Mrs. Davis, being ill. Mrs. Aldana Stuart acted as secretary. Dr. George H. Coombs, of Augusta, gave a most interesting talk on "Health Work." Ice cream and cake were served after the meeting. The program committee consisted of Mrs. Elmer Stuart, Mrs. N. E. Whitney and Mrs. Marshall Pitts. The refreshment committee were Mrs. David H. Green, Mrs. Wm. Smith, and Mrs. W. A. Hunter. Plans were made for a Grand Picnic on the last day of school for North Bridgton and Harrison schools. The date will be June 10 and Miss Jones, teacher of the grammar school and Miss Wyman, teacher of the Intermediate were chosen as committee on arrangements. F. P. Freeman will have charge of the sports.

Harrison people are all much interested in the advancement of one of our young men, Leonard Carsley, who is surely rising in his chosen work. Excellent reports come to us from the Pittsburgh Step-In-and-Shop Co. at Pittsburgh, Pa., of the rise of Mr. Carsley, who was in charge of one of their Motor Markets, of which they have a dozen or more, to the position at the office of the Community Market where he has supervision over all their motor market operations. In a recent copy of the Motor Market Junior, a fine photograph of Mr. Carsley and a brief sketch of his interesting career was given. He was born in Portland, Maine, but has spent most of his life in Harrison with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Carsley. He received his education in the Harrison schools, Bridgton Academy and Bowdoin College. Friends are always pleased to hear such worth while expressions of appreciation directly from head quarters and all hope for further success to Leonard Albion Carsley.

Pitts sang a beautiful solo, "I'll Wear a White Flower for you, Mother, Dear". In behalf of the school, Stanley Freeman presented Mrs. Thompson with a bouquet of white carnations. COURAGE THAT OVERCOMES

Most of us regard loss of eyesight as a terrible affliction. Perhaps the most serious that can befall man or woman. To be without the faculty of sight is to be placed at a dreadful disadvantage in the race of life. Yet the handicap can be overcome. From the University of Illinois two men were graduated who have been blind from birth. One will get his bachelor's degree, the other, having already attained that honor, is to be given a master's degree.

Strangely enough the latter has done his post graduate work in political economy, a most exacting science. He completed his course with the highest possible credit. Now he will take up the study of law, while the other blind man will continue his studies to fit himself for the profession of teaching. Lack of sight merely served to stimulate the mental faculties of these men. They studied harder than those with whom they were associated, possibly because they were less likely to be distracted by casual glances of what was going on around them.

Sublime courage enabled them to overcome the serious obstacle nature had placed in their way. Continuing as they have started, their success in life is assured, for their pluck and determination will carry them over the ordinary hurdles that mark the way. Students who are blessed with good eyes should find in these cases inspiration that will help them on to the goal they have in view. Lack of eyesight is a tremendous burden, but it is not fatal where true courage abounds.

DEAD LEGALLY ROBBED

The Inheritance Tax is being hailed with delight in this state as a great discovery. In the last fifteen years Maine has roped in over forty million dollars from this source. The inheritance tax, like the income tax is nothing more or less than legalized robbery. Like the latter, it is double taxation and in too many cases works a distinct hardship upon the beneficiaries. After the state and nation has bled a fellow to death, there is no justice in jumping on his relatives after he has been laid to rest. Bridgton News.

AN IMAGINATIVE FIGURE OF THE GALAXY OR MILKY WAY

Including spiral Nebulae, Panetary Nebulae, Dark Nebulae, Star Clusters, and other objects. Furnished by S. B. Cummings, for this issue.

The following note from the very highest authority in astronomy: "the evidence further suggests that the galatic system now moves as a whole, through space, driving the spiral nebulae before it and absorbing and disintegrating isolated stellar groups."

Poles of the Milky-Way are, 12 hours, 50 minutes Right Ascension in Coma Berenices, plus 26 degrees declinsion and .0 hours 42 minutes Right Ascension minus 27 degrees declinsion in Sculpto-ris.

No wonder that on a clear night when you have viewed the great celestial dome, studded with those silver lights that show no tarnish, perhaps you have felt or seemed to have said, "grand, but where does it begin and where does it end?"

"It does seem confusing to the comprehension. Don't let the comprehension lie dormant or "hidebound" in this matter, but in the spirit of those who say, "I am willing to try a worthy thing once," just attach a wing to each side of it and fly to freedom.

Nearly all the objects, except the spiral nebulae so far as known, are within the galaxy or Milky-Way which the above cut represents. The star clusters lie at varying distances, from 20 thousand to 100,000 light years. These values are used to guide in the estimate of a decisive form of the galaxy. We stand under the arch of the Milky-Way or galaxy, facing either way, to where it extends down to the horizon, and it appears as a great ring of faint light but it is really a double convex disk of stars and fields of light and dark nebulae, the material which the stars are made from. This disk is not so very thick but in line of sight and seems fairly even in distribution of the stars.

All the scattered stars on each side of us as we stand, are members of this great disk, reaching out each way at a distance of the order of some fifteen thousand light years at the thickest center, with scattering stars beyond.

If the above figure was turned edgewise and in line of sight, it might be well represented in form in a homely pattern, two kettle covers placed together with the bulging sides out, or some have used for a model, a watch crystal, others a lens. A thin disk, the size of the kettle cover, placed between them would well represent the plane of the galaxy.

Astronomers infer that the outside centers of the convex sides of the galaxy are depressed, which seems to be the law of most of the heavenly bodies that rotate, for there is a thinning out of stars in these regions.

Investigators have discovered the evidence that the galaxy seems to be driving the spirals before it, for they are rapidly retreating from the plane while the star clusters are approaching it. Within 25 years a detection of star streaming, or what is thought to be more appropriately described as star drifting, two different motions but parallel and in opposite directions which intermingle, each drift with the other, also there is evidence of a third drift which field is practically quiet.

This figure, which to the naked eye is the apparent form, has the estimate which is supported by three or four methods of measurements and has a diameter of the order of 300,000 light years (a little less than six trillions of miles for each light year).

Our local position, or the solar system, which is eccentrically situated, would seeem to occupy a point somewhere away from the center and some distance from the plane, as observations indicate. All the stars which can be seen with the unaided eye are within a radius of 100 light years or say within a shell of 200 light years in diameter. According to the law of distribution of stars, a shell, of a radius of 10 light years or of 20 light years in diameter of this imagined hollow globe there should be only six stars within it. Only four stars are known to be within it. Taey are Alpha Centaurus (except the Sun) our nearest star 4.3 light years away. Sirius, the brighest star in the sky except the Sun, at a distance of 8.6 light years. Barnard's "runaway star" of six light years away, which has the greatest proper motion and which would cover the moon's breadth in 190 years of time. Also a star of the seventh magnitude known at Lalande No. 21185.

Of the 6200 stars nearer than 100 light years (according to Kapteyn, the Dutch astronomer, 1-8th or 760 may be expected to exceed the sun's brightness.

Only one star in 50,000 on an average is 1 thousand times as bright as the sun. Of the 6,200 stars, 5,410 are fainter than the sun. About 3,400 of them will give out less than 1-10th as much light as the sun.

First Picnic This Season at Mutiny Brook—W. K. Hamlin and Car Fell Into Brook—Serenading Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Percy and daughter, Virginia, of Portland, and Mrs. Eugene Goff and Miss Elizabeth Millett, of Cumberland Mills, were Sunday callers of Mrs. Roberts on May 1st. They had a picnic dinner on Mutiny Brook. Quite probably the first picnic of the season, there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Learned and family are rejoicing over the birth of a son, born on Friday May 6th. They have named him, Willis Preston. Their youngest girl is fifteen years old.

W. K. Hamlin had a narrow escape in Albany, on Tuesday morning, when his car hit the railing on a bridge while making a bad curve, throwing the car upside down into a stream of water six feet deep and Mr. Hamlin was thrown or slid from the seat into the water. He had to swim a few strokes to get to shallow water, but got out alone without a scratch, only his glasses bent a bit. A man in a house near by loaned him some dry clothes and found him a conveyance home, where he had a hot bath so has suffered no ill effects from the experience. It seems almost a miracle. When the Skinner Garage men went for the car, they found the top collapsed and the wheels under water, and at present Mr. Hamlin is busy talking and riding with auto salesmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKeen and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeen, and Mr. Baker of Lisbon Falls, were Sunday visitors at their cousin's, Mrs. Freeman Hapgood's, recently.

Edward Tarbox was a week end guest of his cousin, Mildred Haynes.

Dorothy Holden who has been ill with an attack of the grippe, had to miss two days of school. Fortunately it came near the week end or it would have made a great number of days' absence.

Mrs. Ida P. Riggs spent two days this past week in North Bridgton, visiting Mrs. Elton Yorke.

Raymond Moore and family of Auburn were at their cottage, "Wedgemere" over the week end.

Mrs. Rupert Greenleaf of Brockton, Mass., is spending two weeks with her father, Charles Yorke.

A party of 35 young folks from the village drove to Millettville, Norway, on Friday evening to serenade Mr. and Mrs. H. Willard Berry. The party arrived at nine o'clock at the farm. They first helped house part of the wood and did many other pranks. Soon the Berrys were dressed and invited the crowd in for a treat and cigars.

Oren and Murray Brown, electricians, of East Otisfield, are working on the street light system with Edgar L. Stone. We are hoping for better service later. The Browns are boarding at Mrs. A. A. Monroe's.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodman Charles of Harrison, and Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Fox of Portland, were recent callers at Mrs. Ida B. Riggs'. Glad to know Mrs. Charles has recovered from her illness so she is able to ride out.

Neighbors' meeting of Bear Mountain Grange was on Saturday May 7th. It was an ideal day, a big crowd and a delicious dinner. The literary program was in charge of Blanch Tyler and the visiting granges all had fine numbers. The question on community buying and selling was opened by Rev. B. F. Wentworth, followed by Dr. Blake of Harrison, L. E. McIntire, George Kimball, of North Waterford and others. Mr. Wentworth showed moving pictures. There were 23 visiting members from Waterford Grange, 12 from Lakeside Grange, Harrison, 7 from Sweden Grange, 2 from Norway Grange and 1, Round Mountain Grange, Albany. Bear Mountain Grange has an invitation to the Educational Day at Norway, on Saturday, May 14th.

The religious services at W. C. Goodwin'son Sunday, May 1st, were well attended. The prophet Joel, was Mr. Townsend's talk. The services this week were held at W. K. Hamlin's. Mr. Townsend has been ill with the grippe and was far from able to conduct the services.

Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet—Spent Week End in Old Orchard—Mr. and Mrs. H. Gage Spent Week End at Summer Home.

Friday evening, May 6, the Community House was the scene of a delightful gathering, the "Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet". The decorations were in pink and included lamp shades, favors at each place in the form of tiny pink may baskets filled with delicious candy and pink carnations. At 6.30, thirty-three mothers and daughters gathered around the long table. Mrs. Charlotte Fillebrown, and Mrs. Dora Rounds were hostesses for the evening. After grace was said by Mrs. Townsend, the following menu was enjoyed chicken Pie, Mashed Potatoes, Peas, Rolls, Fruit Salad, Cake, Pineapple ice cream and coffee. Mrs. Charlotte Fillebrown was toast mistress., and introduced the speakers in a delightful manner. First was "A Toast for the Mothers," written by Mrs. Ida Holden, and read by Mrs. Blanche Tyler, as Mrs. Holden was unable to be present on account of illness of her daughter. This was followed by Mrs. Hazel Gardner, who spoke on "Girlhood's Gift to Mothers," and by Louise Stone, with "Mother's Gift to Girlhood". Mrs. Carrie Haynes and daughter, Mildred, sang a duet which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Ruth Wentworth spoke at length on the 'Camp Fire Girls' Mrs. Helen Morse gave a fine talk on "Home". Mrs. June Pike completed the list of speakers, after which the guests enjoyed a social hour. Music was furnished throughout the banquet hour by Katherine Stone. Mrs. Fillebrown was in charge of the affair and worked hard to make it a success, and she was assisted by the mothers and daughters who helped in various ways, and by generous gifts of money from interested friends. It was a matter of deep regret that illness prevented, several mothers and daughters from attending.

Mrs. Minnie Sanderson and son, Robert, motored to Old Orchard on Friday evening to spend the week end with her parents, who are leaving soon for a trip abroad.

Nellie Stone has been visiting relatives in Newburyport and Ipswich.

Willis Learned, our popular meat man, is the proud father of a ten and one half pound boy, born on May 5th. This is the first boy in a family of girls. A daughter was born to the wife of Carleton Millett, on May 5, the first girl in a family of boys. Mrs. Carl Hamlin, and infant son, also born on this eventful May 5th, are being cared for at Dr. Hubbard's.

Mr. and Mrs. Hovey Gage spent the week end in town, at their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Eveleth made a short visit in the village on Monday.

Little Billy Fillebrown aged three years, felt slighted at not being allowed to attend the Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet, "Cause he wanted some of that chitten pie", but was comforted by a baby size "chitten pie", all for himself, made by his mother.

Vesta Howard

An Unusual Bethel School Teacher Recalled

"Not long since," writes Don C. Seitz from New York, looking over the first volume of the Christian Union, the predecessor of the Outlook, "I ran across the following, in the issue of October 16, 1869, which will no doubt be of interest to the older readers of the Advertiser in Bethel."

Mr. N. T. True, school superintendent of Oxford County, Maine, has made a special report concerning a school-mistress in that State and her work. Her name is Vesta Howard and she teaches in the town of Bethel. She is fifty-five years old and has taught seventy terms of public and private school. Yet, says Dr. True, she is far in advance of most young teachers, instead of being antiquated. The following are extracts from the account of the school:

"She commenced the afternoon session by saying that she did not think it best to set the children immediately to work upon their studies because they had been at play and were not in the best condition for close application. She therefore took a second Progressive Reader, and read a story as badly as she could and let them correct her faults. She then read it correctly, and as one would talk, all eyes were fixed on her. She then called a register of scholars by numbers, who answered by their names and ages. Among them was a Winfield Scott, General Fremont and other prominent names; and as they were announced she had a word to say about their history, without scarcely stopping her register. She then made them all take their books out of their seats together, without noise. No slates were to hit the desks or books to be shuffled. She selects a captain for each of the smaller classes, who steps out and calls the class out by numbers. Books are all held alike. This makes them executive scholars.

"In reading, small children repeat the same word till they can command it in the sentence, and then they read it correct. In spelling, they all fold their arms, with the book under their left arm. Sometimes she spells the words and they pronounce them. This was a fine exercise. She made them pronounce correctly, cow, how, now, bow, row. They made a graceful bow when leaving for their seats. Each class has a definte time for studying a lesson, and the teacher calls their attention to it at the moment.

"They came out to read with folded arms, read with strong emphasis, and naturally. She makes them look at her lips, as she pronounces words round and full and makes them do the same after her. While hearing a class reading, if a class is studying geography, she will suddenly call their attention to some point in the lesson, and then go right on with the reading. She will call upon a scholar by surprise to rise and tell something about the lesson she is studying. This was done with great promptness. This kept them on the alert.

"She has bouquets all around the room, and maps and pictures on the walls, to make the room look pleasant. Her order is perfect. Not a book or pencil is heard prominently.

"She questions them on what they have read. In spelling they give familiar definitions in their own language, and are required to pronounce each letter fully and forcibly."

17 Years' Suffering Stopped by Tanlac

Old Town resident, severely stricken, despaired of recovery. Tries Tanlac. Quick results showing, she perseveres and wins back health.

Mrs. Mary McAuliffe lives at 16 Centre St., Old Town, Maine. For 64 years, this kindly lady has been known and highly respected by practically everyone in the community. "For 17 years," she said, "I have seen many remedies come and go, but none to equal Tanlac.

"At times I was so weak I could hardly stand on my feet, and couldn't lift my hand to do anything. I felt miserable most of the time. Dizzy spells would make my head spin like a top. What little I forced myself to eat nauseated me. I reached the point of despair and didn't care for anything.

"I tried Tanlac. By the time I had finished six bottles I could eat and sleep as I did 40 years ago, and was able to do my housework. That was a year ago and I have been well ever since."

Tanlac is nature's own remedy, made from roots, herbs and barks. Over 52,000,000 bottles already sold. If you're rundown or underweight, get a trial bottle today. Your druggist has it.

Drive the car that established 10 world records—
5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes!

The COMMANDER
A STUDEBAKER BIG SIX

Only by owning a Commander can you avoid taking Commander dust on hills and highways

FROM one Coast to the other, The Commander is smashing records of speed, records of hill climbing, records of sales!

5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes

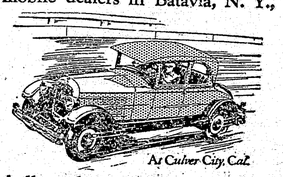

In a recent sensational test at Culver City, California, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, Harry Hartz and three other noted pilots drove The Commander—a strictly stock, fully-equipped enclosed car—5000 miles in 4909 minutes, total elapsed time, establishing ten new world records.

This is better than mile-a-minute speed for 81 consecutive hours and 49 minutes—the fastest speed for the farthest distance ever attained by any stock car!

It is equivalent in stress and strain to 25,000 miles of ordinary driving. Yet in establishing this and nine intervening world records, the only mechanical repairs necessary on The Commander were three grease cups (damaged in hasty greasing), and one spark plug.

The Commander Out-climbs All Other Cars

In another public contest, five automobile dealers in Batavia, N. Y.,

At Culver City, Cal.

challenged Studebaker's repeated statement that The Commander will out-perform any car selling within a thousand dollars of its price.

The scene of the contest was a long hill near Batavia with an average grade of 10%. The 3 tests were:

1. To climb the hill in the slowest possible time—without slipping the clutch.

2. To climb the hill, from a standing start, in the fastest possible time.

3. To climb the hill, from a flying start, in the fastest possible time.

At Batavia, N. Y.

The Commander won all three events easily! In the slow-time event, one of the most widely advertised sixes in America was unable to make the grade without shifting gears.

In addition to this proof of Big Six supremacy, The Commander carried a load of ten men, weighing 1653 pounds, up the hill in high gear. Then to cap the climax, The Commander carried 17 men, weighing 2794 pounds, to the top in high, the speedometer reading 35 miles at the start and 22 miles at the finish.

Climbs 10-Story Building

In Washington, D. C., the Capitol Garage dedicated its new $1,000,000 building by inviting all the automobile dealers to engage in an indoor hill-climbing contest—a climb of twenty ramps, ten stories in height.

The Commander wound its way easily up the steep ramps in high gear—and 5000 people cheered its victory over the field. After the contest, 102 drivers of different cars tried to equal The Commander's time-record—but every one failed!

Harry Hartz wired us after setting 10 world records in The Commander:

"Based on my experience driving my personal Studebaker Commander and in making the recent record run at Culver City Speedway with a Studebaker Commander strictly stock model, it is my opinion that it will maintain any given speed, up to sixty-five miles per hour, longer, more smoothly, and at less expense per hour traveled, for gasoline, oil and repairs, than any other stock automobile now being built in the United States."

Prices of The Studebaker Commander:

Commander Sedan, $1585; Commander Victoria, $1575; (broadcloth upholstery, $1645); Commander Coupe, $1545; (with rumble seat, $1645).

All prices f. o. b. factory, including front and rear bumpers, snubbers all around, and four-wheel brakes. More than $100 worth of extra equipment included at no extra cost.

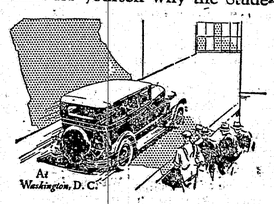

Other Studebaker models from $1165 to $2245; Erskine Six models, $945 and $995.

What These Records Mean to You

You probably will never need mile-a-minute speed for 5000 miles—you may never want to enter a hill-climbing contest. But these remarkable records are proof of what we have demonstrated time and again on Studebaker's 800-acre Proving Ground—that The Commander in every phase of every-day driving will out-perform and out-live any other car, six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

Drive The Commander Yourself

The best evidence for you of the thrilling performance of The Commander is what the car will do in your own hands. Get behind the wheel of a Commander as our guest, without strings or obligation. Learn for yourself why the Studebaker Big Six now far out-sells the combined totals of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower.

At Washington, D. C.

The Commander's ease of handling, comfort and custom beauty, are a revelation in motor car luxury at a One-Profit price. 'Phone us now and take command of The Commander today!

PETER AT PENTECOST

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2.

GOLDEN TEXT—Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.—Acts 2:38.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Preaches About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Gift of Power.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter at Pentecost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Spiritual Power.

I. The Day of Pentecost Fully Come (vv. 1-13).

1. Significance of the day (v. 1).

Pentecost is from a Greek word meaning "fifty." It was the feast held fifty days after the wave sheaf offering (Lev. 23:16). The wave sheaf typifies the resurrection of Christ (I Cor. 15:20-23).

2. The gift of the Holy Spirit (vv. 2-4).

On this day the Holy Spirit descended upon the disciples. From that time forth He would work on a new basis, having the crucified, risen and ascended Christ to present to the world.

3. Upon whom the Spirit came (v. 1; cf. 1:13-15).

The twelve and others, both men and women to the number of one hundred and twenty, showing that the gift of the Holy Spirit was for all believers, not merely the apostles.

4. The marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-4).

These marks were external and internal.

(1) External.

(a) The sound of a mighty wind (v. 2). This is suggestive of the mysterious, pervasive and powerful energy of the Spirit.

(b) The tongues of flame (v.3). Each of the one hundred and twenty was crowned with such a tongue. Tongues show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gift—witnessing.

(c) Speaking in foreign tongues (v. 4). This was a temporary endowment for a special purpose.

(2) Internal.

This is seen in the transformation wrought in the disciples. Peter, who shortly before this, cowered before a Jewish maid, now with lion boldness stands before the chief rulers and declares that they had murdered their King, therefore guilty before God.

5. The effects (vv. 5-13).

(1) The multitude were filled with amazement and wonder. The gift of the Spirit transforms common men into men of power and influence.

(2) Some mocked and foolishly attempted to account for this remarkable occurrence. They accused the disciples of being intoxicated.

II. Peter's Sermon (vv. 14-47).

Peter's sermon is as wonderful as the gift of tongues. His analysis is perfect.

1. The introduction (vv. 14-21).

(1) Defense of the disciples against the charge of being drunk (v. 15). This he does by citing Jewish custom showing that they would not be drunk at such an early hour of the day.

(2) A scriptural explanation. He showed that this was a partial fulfillment of that which Joel predicted would come to pass (vv. 16-21; cf. Joel 2:28-32) before the messianic judgment, viz., an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the salvation of all who call upon the name of the Lord.

2. The proposition, or theme (v. 36). This was the messiahship of Jesus.

3. The argument (vv. 22-36). It was threefold.

(1) From Christ's works (v. 22). He was approved of God among the Jews by His miracles, wonders and signs which God did by Him in their midst with which they were familiar.

(2) From His resurrection (vv. 23-32). The Old Testament Scriptures had foretold the death and resurrection of Christ (Ps. 16:8-10). The disciples were living witnesses of Christ's resurrection for they had seen and talked with Him, and handled Him since the resurrection (v. 32).

(3) From His ascension to be on the right hand of God (v. 32). The proof that He had ascended on high was the wonderful miracle of the Spirit's operation in their midst; for He had said that upon His ascension into heaven He would send forth the Spirit.

4. The effect of the sermon (vv. 37-42).

Many people were convicted of their sins, some three thousand of whom repented and were baptized. The daily life of these believers was proof of the Spirit's gift.

(1) They continued steadfastly in the apostolic teaching (v. 42).

(2) They continued in fellowship with the apostles (v. 42).

ADVISING THE LOVERS

The veteran city clerk of Malden, Mass., in celebrating his 84th birthday, speaks of the many marriage licenses he has issued to young people and the kindly advice he has given to many who seemed to need such suggestions. He tells them that in getting married they ought to have it first in mind to establish a home and build it up.

That is a point of view that many young couples have not acquired. They get married because they enjoy going around together and they want a partner in their fun. The home end of it is secondary.

There will be many divorces until the home motive become firstneither the man nor the woman becomes a substantial citizen until that idea of making a happy and comfortable home has become the dominant motive in marrying. Some of our young people need more of that point of view.

Second Liberty Loan Bonds To Be Paid Or Exchanged

Mellon Calls Second Liberty Loan Bonds for Payment November 15, 1927

Steps Taken to Inform All Holders

Use of Radio for First Time

Secretary Mellon has called for payment on November 15, 1927, all outstanding Second Liberty Loan bonds. Interest on these bonds will cease on November 15, 1927. Approximately $1,700,000,000 of these bonds are now outstanding.

While the bonds will be paid on November 15, 1927 it is quite probable that during the next six months the Treasury will extend to the holders of the Second Liberty Loan Bonds an opportunity to exchange them for other Goverment securities No announcement has as yet been made as the type of security to be offered in exchange, or the date on which the exchange offer may be expected. The Treasury explains that the terms of the bonds require that a notice be given to to the public six months in advance of the redemption date. The Secretary's announcement, therefore, does not mean that the bonds will be paid at the present time, but merely places the holders on notice that their bonds will be redeemed on November 15, and will cease to bear interest on that date.

If holders of Second Liberties desire to have their bonds redeemed, they should present them for payment on November 15, 1927, but if they desire other Government obligations in place of their Seconds, they should watch for further announcement and notify their bank to keep them informed of any exchange offering that may later be made by the Treasury.

In 1917 and 1918, it will be recalled, when the Government was selling bonds of the several Liberty Loans, a nation wide campaign was conducted every available facility being used to reach the public and sell the bonds. The situation is now practically reversed, and the Government is preparing to redeem or exchange some of these bonds. While no such elaborate canvass is contemplated for the redemption notice as was undertaken in 1917 the Treasury, nevertheless is making a special effort to inform the holders of Second Liberty Loan bonds that their bonds will cease to bear interest on November 15th. Banks and trust companies throughout the country will be asked to cooperate with the Government in spreading the news of this call for redemption, and in advising the holders of bonds that the Treasury will probably offer for new securities in exchange. For the first time the radio will be used by the Goverment as a means of reaching millions of bondholders. An announcement will shortly be broadcast from the larger radio stations of the country.

The importance of acquainting bond holders with the fact that their bonds have been called for payment is emphasized by the Treasury's records of previous calls for redemption or exchange. These records show that there are still outstanding at the present time, in the hands of the public, about $30,000,000 in in Government securities upon which interest has ceased. Included in this amount are $3,600,000 in Victory notes which ceased to bear interest in 1922 and 1923. There are also outstanding $14,500,000 in temporary bonds of the several Liberty Loans to which were attached only a limited number of interest coupons. The last coupons matured about seven years ago. The holders of these temporary bonds have neglected to exchange them for permanent bonds having the full number of interest coupons attached; and until such exchange is made, they have no means of collecting the interest. In the face of these facts, the Treasury is especially anxious that the present announcement reach as many Second Liberty Loan bondholders as it is possible to reach through the press, the radio and the banks of the country.

The Second Liberty Loan, which was issued in November, 1917 was the second large loan floated by the Government during the World War, and while this loan does not mature until 1942, the condition of the money market and of the Government's finances makes it possible and advisable to call the bonds for redemption in November.

See That Beater!

It's mounted on the axle—that's why the John Deere is easier on you, easier on your horses, does better work and lasts longer.

There are more John Deere spreaders in use in most agricultural territories than any other make. There is a reason. The beater-on-the-axle construction has made possible the only vital improvements in spreader construction since the first commercially successful spreader was built in 1878. The John Deere gives you spreader advantages that have been needed for years.

JOHN DEERE SPREADER

The patented beater construction gives you these distinctive advantages:

1. A box 6 to 10 inches lower than others—much easier to load.
2. High drive wheels—4 to 8 inches higher than others—gives extra traction—extra power. Load moves back to beater on rollers—saves the horses.
3. The simplest spreader built—no clutches, no chains, no adjustments for you to make—reduces repair bills—the spreader lasts years longer.
4. Beater close to ground—does not throw manure high in air—winds do not cause drifting of manure—does better work. Patented revolving rake prevents bunching.

Come in and see this better spreader—there are many other features on it we want to show you.

Are You "Toxic?"

It Is Well, Then, to Learn the Importance of Good Elimination.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many readers have learned the value of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, in this condition. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Why Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES Wear Longer

WE recently were given the tremendous advantage of having the mammoth Firestone factories brought to us. In Tire Educational Meetings we were shown, by means of motion pictures, charts, tire samples and complete engineering data, the details of Firestone tire design and construction—and how Firestone and Oldfield tires and tubes are made in the world's most efficient and economical rubber factories.

Firestone pioneered the original low-pressure tire and made it practical by Gum-Dipping. The motion pictures showed us how the cords of the carcass are dipped in a rubber solution, thoroughly saturating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber. Simple demonstrations and tests illustrated the great advantage of this process, which supplies the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strains of low-pressure construction—one of the reasons why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are establishing such unheard-of mileage records.

We learned why the Firestone Balloon Tread gives extra safety, comfort and long wear. We were shown why Firestone, from the very beginning, designed and continue to use the round Balloon Tread, minimizing "shoulder breaks", so destructive to tires. Excess rubber at the edges of a Balloon Tread is wasted—actually detrimental to tire mileage. In the Firestone Tread the small units and sharp projections are scientifically placed to permit easy flexing, resulting in extraordinary riding comfort.

PUT MONEY IN SCHOOL SAVINGS

Young gentlemen, it pays to save. Even a little may be worth while.

Mr. Couzens, asked to pay nine million dollars more income tax, had saved $900 when he met Ford. That gave him his chance. By and by he sold his interest to Ford for thirty million dollars. If he hadn't saved the nine hundred dollars, he could not have the Government suing him for the million dollars.

Moral: Save something if only a little.
